Happy Spring from JSI!

This winter we have worked with one Part A Grantee to conduct a root cause analysis with young men to better understand the context that influences their sexual and reproductive health behaviors. We will also be introducing Program H during the next Young Men's Program call and providing a training about it at the YEAH! Network conference in May. Program H engages young men in reducing STDs/HIV, teen births and violence against women.

If you are interested in technical assistance related to involving young men in teen pregnancy prevention, please contact JSI.

For practical, evidence-based strategies to engage young men, check out this brief and excellent resource from Public/Private Ventures.

For more tools and resources on working with diverse communities, visit our website.

To offer feedback or suggestions, please contact us at rhey@jsi.com.
This update is published by JSI Research & Training Institute's Working with Diverse Communities Component, part of the Teenage Pregnancy Prevention: Integrating Services, Programs, and Strategies Through Community-wide Initiatives project, funded by the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Health (OASH), Office of Adolescent Health (OAH)/Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) under the President's Teen Pregnancy Prevention Initiative (TPPI).